01 WHAT IT IS

Daily Mind Challenge is a browser-based puzzle site built around a simple daily ritual: three well-loved puzzle formats, one new challenge in each per day, free to play, no download or app install. Anyone can start playing in one tap as a guest — no signup wall — with an optional free account for streaks, a daily login bonus, and the ability to create and share custom challenges.

02 THE THREE GAMES, MODE BY MODE

Every game shares the same three-mode shape (Daily Challenge, a replay mode, and Tournament) — a repeatable creative hook: "pick your game, then pick how you want to play it."

Wordle

DAILY CHALLENGE	One 5-letter word a day, identical for every player. Guess it in 6 tries; tiles turn green/yellow/gray after each guess, exactly like the original Wordle.
TOURNAMENTS	An admin-curated run of several words back to back, each under a time limit. Fail one word and the whole run resets to word 1 — no partial credit, high stakes. Full completion pays out a lump-sum bonus.
CHALLENGE A FRIEND	A registered player picks their own word, gets a shareable link, and sends it to anyone. The recipient (no account needed) gets one attempt. The creator earns a reward per solver — a built-in viral loop already live in the product.

Sudoku

DAILY CHALLENGE	One 9x9 puzzle a day, identical for every player. Tap a cell, tap a number (or type it) to fill it in.
CLASSIC	Pick Easy, Medium, or Hard and get a random puzzle from that pool. Unlimited replays, any time.
TOURNAMENT	A curated run of puzzles under a time limit and error allowance. Failing a puzzle banks a smaller reward and moves on rather than resetting the run. A completion bonus pays out once every puzzle has been attempted.

Word Search

DAILY CHALLENGE	One hidden-word grid a day, identical for every player. Click/tap a letter and drag in a straight line to the word's other end.
CLASSIC	Pick a difficulty (each with its own grid size and word count) and get a random puzzle, freshly shuffled on every replay.
TOURNAMENT	Same forgiving shape as Sudoku's — a failed puzzle banks a smaller reward and moves on, plus a live running score throughout and a completion bonus at the end.

03 WHY THIS IS A GOOD PAID-SOCIAL FIT

- Zero-friction entry. The ad's landing destination is playable in one tap — no app store detour, no account wall.
- Built to be shared already. Wordle's Challenge a Friend is a real, live player-to-player share mechanic a campaign can amplify, not build from scratch.
- A daily-habit product. All three games reset every 24 hours with a streak mechanic — a hook that rewards a sustained always-on campaign.
- Proven category. Daily word/number puzzles are an established, high-engagement habit — the ad's job is introducing this specific site, not the concept.

04 AUDIENCE

Squarely the existing daily-word-and-number-puzzle audience (already playing Wordle, NYT Games, or Sudoku apps daily):

- Habitual, not casual — the pitch is "add this to that ritual," not "discover puzzles."
- Competitive-with-friends — leaderboard and Challenge a Friend suggest besting a specific person, not an anonymous rank.
- Values variety without switching apps — "three in one" is a genuine, differentiated pitch.
- Price- and friction-sensitive — free and no-signup-required are real decision factors.

NOTE FOR THE AGENCY

Directional, drawn from the product's own design decisions — not sourced third-party research. Worth validating with Meta Ads Manager audience insights before finalizing targeting.

05 KEY MESSAGES

3-in-1 One site, three daily puzzles — stop switching between apps	$0 Completely free, no download, no account required to start	1 tap From ad click to playing — no signup wall in the way
--	--	--

"Play daily Wordle, Sudoku, and Word Search puzzles, earn points, and climb the leaderboard." — the site's own tagline, used consistently across its share copy today.

06 VOICE & TONE

Warm, encouraging, a little playful — never smug or hardcore-gamer-coded. The product's own copy signs off with "Enjoy the challenge and have fun!" Emoji appear naturally in its share messages (Brain, Green square, Fire, Eyes) — a reasonable cue for how casual ad copy can go, without tipping into gimmicky.

Avoid: intensity/competition-only framing ("dominate," "crush"), any real-money/gambling implication (there is none), and app-store language ("download," "install") — this is a website, and that friction-free distinction is part of the pitch.
